Presenting the Torch of Liberty Award to

The Wolf Family

Elaine Wolf, Sandy Wolf, Ashly Wolf and Kelly Ann Hodges

Thursday, November 1, 2018

6:00 pm - 9:00 pm

Denver Center for Performing Arts Seawell Ballroom

Three generations of women have provided leadership to The Melvin & Elaine Wolf Foundation and its support of those in need throughout Colorado. Melvin and Elaine started the Foundation in 1979 with the belief that with the privilege of being part of a community comes the responsibility of giving something back. The Foundation is guided by a desire to open children to the possibilities of wonder, enjoyment and enlightenment through learning and observation, and to address difficult issues in lives of adults and families, including those related to health, housing, shelter and a lack of food, as well as to ensure that there is art in everyone's life. The Foundation's patronage of many worthwhile institutions and programs throughout the community has included tremendous support of ADL and especially its anti-bias education initiative, No Place for Hate®, which is in over 60 schools throughout Colorado.

The torch of liberty has been passed from generation to generation in the Wolf family. Elaine Wolf is the President Emeritus of the Foundation. Sandy, her daughter, who carried the torch alongside her parents, has worked in the Foundation since its inception and ensured it remains true to its vision. In turn, Sandy has passed the torch onto her daughters, Ashly Wolf and Kelly Ann Hodges, who are currently Directors of the Foundation.
